Legal Restrictions on Providing Competitive Information to SAP and/or its affiliates (hereinafter "SAP")

Suppliers who provide Competitive Information to SAP shall at all times comply with the following restrictions as required by law.
For the purposes of this document, Competitive Information means information relating to an SAP competitor's products, services, business plans, and strategies. Competitive Information includes both information that is in the public domain or otherwise lawfully available, in which SAP has legitimate interest, as well as information about business or trade secrets of other companies that is confidential, proprietary or otherwise restricted and protected as intellectual property, in which SAP has no interest.
These restrictions apply to all methods of obtaining or providing Competitive Information, notwithstanding whether the information is spoken, printed, or electronic, or takes the form of speech, text, code, or graphics, and whether access includes viewing, hearing, analyzing, discussing, summarizing, copying, forwarding, downloading, or storing such information.
These restrictions are illustrative, not exhaustive. Partners, Contractors, and third parties with any questions regarding application of IP law to their SAP-related activities should contact their legal representative for advice and assistance.

- Suppliers shall only provide Competitive Information that is obtained lawfully and ethically.
- Under no circumstances shall a Suppliers provide Competitive Information to SAP unless it is in the public domain or otherwise lawfully available for transmission to SAP.
- In addition, Suppliers who may be exposed to Competitive Information must act with the highest standards of business ethics at all times.
- In case of supplying lawfully available Competitive Information to SAP, Supplier must comply with all terms and conditions attached to or otherwise applicable to the Competitive Information, regardless of its source.
- Suppliers who obtain Competitive Information at trade shows, conferences or the like must be aware of and strictly follow any legal notices or confidentiality agreements attendant to such information.
- Suppliers cannot use false or misleading information to obtain Competitive Information which is provided to SAP.
- In case of obtaining information that may be confidential, proprietary or otherwise restricted or protected as intellectual property from an SAP competitor's system, software or websites, Supplier must abide by Terms of Use on the website, click-wrap agreements or other written restrictions on such information.
- In case of gaining access to an SAP competitor's trade secrets, or any other information that may be confidential, proprietary or otherwise restricted or protected as intellectual property, Supplier must not, under any circumstances, provide that information to SAP.
- All restrictions applicable to accessing and providing SAP competitors' information apply to SAP information as well. In case of exposure to SAP trade secrets or any other SAP information that may be confidential, proprietary or otherwise restricted or protected as intellectual property, Supplier must not under any circumstances provide that information to SAP competitors or third parties.